

HUMBERT MILL IS TO RESUME IN FULL WITHIN SIXTY DAYS.

Official Announcement Made Last Evening by District Manager Robert Skemp.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE DID IT

Plant Will Be Run as an Open Mill and Will Mean Disbursement of About $40,000 a Month in Connellsville. Idle Five Years.

The plant of the American Sheet & Tin Plate Company at South Connellsville will start operations in full within 60 days. That is the official announcement made by the company last evening by Robert Skemp, of Scottsdale, district manager for the company. To the reorganized and rejuvenated Chamber of Commerce of Connellsville is due credit for this announcement from the company that the old Humbert mill is again to resume work. The outlook at present is that there is steady work ahead for the mill for a year. There are six hot mills at the South Connellsville plant which employ between 300 and 350 men, boys and girls, the latter in the tin house, when in full operation.

About two weeks ago the Chamber of Commerce took up the matter of interesting the management of the American Sheet & Tin Plate Company in the resumption of the Humbert mill. They went about it energetically, but quietly. The following letter under date of October 11 was sent A. W. Pargny, President of the company, whose headquarters are in Pittsburgh, by Secretary J. Fred Kurtz of the Chamber of Commerce:

There never was an industry that made so much money for the people of Connellsville as the Humbert plant of the American Sheet & Tin Plate Company. There never was an industry that the people hated to see cease active operations as the tin plate mill.

There never was an industry that was wished to start up again so sincerely as your plant at South Connellsville.

Speaking for the town at large, I assure you that every possible effort would be made to assist you in every way within their power to not only start this mill but to keep it in full and active operation continually.

In there anything we can do? Will you be candid with me, and state whether or not the main difficulty lies with Connellsville and its people, or is the trouble entirely beyond our assistance?

We want to help you, if we can. We want the Humbert plant to again help swell the coffers of the business men of this town. The trouble is we don't just know how to start or where to begin.

The Chamber of Commerce of Greater Connellsville has just been reorganized. It is composed of representative men; its main object is to bring new industries to this city. But there is not a man who does not admit that the most desirable thing we could do would be to aid you in every way possible, that we can aid you in starting up the Humbert mill.

District Manager Skemp yesterday afternoon came to Connellsville and at a conference held with Worth Kilpatrick, President of the Chamber of Commerce, Secretary Kurtz and B. T. Norton, a director, announced that the company has given immediate consideration to the letter of the Chamber of Commerce and had reached a final decision to start the Humbert plant. Manager Skemp said the management of the company has taken on the Connellsville people, through the Chamber of Commerce, at their word. All the company asks is that it be permitted to operate the plant under the same policy in force at its mills in other places. Representatives of the company were sent to South Connellsville and made a thorough inspection of the mill. They reported in detail on its condition. To place it in shape for full operation some machinery that had been taken away to other plants since the mill shut down will have to be replaced, a number of minor improvements will be made, the railroad siding will be repaired, supplies will have to be laid in and a full complement of skilled men secured. To do this, putting the mill in shape for a run of three turns a day, the management estimates that about two months time will be necessary. The work may be completed a little before that, but Manager Skemp stated yesterday that the mill will be in full operation before the first of the year.

The mill will be operated as an open one, the same as the Morgan, town and Scottsdale plants. All the company asks is that employees of the mill shall not be molested or interfered with in any way going to or coming from their work. There is an overwhelming sentiment in town to respect the wishes of the company in this respect. Practically all of the union employees of the Humbert mill are now working in open mills of the American Sheet & Tin Plate Company, chiefly at Morgantown and Shar-

CASE IS DISMISSED AGAINST THREE HORWATS

Squire Miller Decides Evidence is Insufficient to Hold Suspects Brought From Pittsburgh.

The charges against the three Horwats arrested in Pittsburgh fell flat at the hearing before Justice of the Peace Frank Miller yesterday afternoon. Emory and Joseph Alex and Joseph Scepsy were charged with the murder of William Atkins on the night of October 5. After hearing the lone witness produced by the Commonwealth, Squire Miller decided that there was not sufficient evidence to hold the men. County Detective Frank McLaughlin agreed that the case was rather flimsy.

Miss Axel Brown was the only witness against the men. She told of a conversation she had overheard between them while in a Pittsburgh restaurant. It seems the men were talking of the machinists' strike in Connellsville and, referring to the strike-breakers, one of them expressed the opinion that some of them would get their bones broken before long. This was all the girl had heard.

County Detective McLaughlin made information against the men on information received from Mossie Unger, a detective of Pittsburgh. The men were discharged.

FEAR SECOND MESSINA MAY FACE ITALY NOW

No News Can Be Learned From Sicily, Where Earthquakes Occurred.

United Press Telegram. ROME, Oct. 22.—Fear that another Messina disaster is awaiting the world at the other end of the wrecked Sicilian lines is hourly growing and the government is taking extreme relief measures, preparing to forward supplies to Catania if the disaster has taken place.

Earth shocks of long duration continue in the neighborhood of Mount Etna today but no definite information as to the extent of the quake and damage can be secured.

Every line of communication with the district has been wrecked. A long death toll is feared. Only one village has been heard from, Acalena, which was totally destroyed.

NAPLES, Oct. 22.—Increased violence in the eruptions of Mount Vesuvius today, in connection with the reported earthquakes in Northern Sicily is causing great alarm. Peasants, fearing another Messina disaster, are deserting the towns and fleeing to the open country.

NO COMMITTEE TO MAKE JUNKET

Chamber of Commerce Will Investigate Williamsport Plan at Home, Committee Merely After Local Sentiment.

Those interested in the Chamber of Commerce are taking a good laugh over the report appearing in a local paper yesterday to effect that there is some question whether the Chamber of Commerce will bear the expense of a committee's trip to Williamsport, or the individual members travel at their own expense.

The cause of the smile is the fact that no such junket was ever contemplated. Secretary J. Fred Kurtz is in full possession of the details of the Williamsport plan which will probably be tried here, and for a committee to go to that city to look into the matter would be a waste of money never dreamed of.

The committee that is to be appointed is one to make a canvass of Connellsville to determine what size guaranty fund could be raised here along the lines of the Williamsport plan. This committee has not been appointed.

Mr. Felty was president and general manager of the Connellsville Grocery Company up to the time of its sale to a Westmoreland Grocery Company, which is now conducting the business.

Mr. Felty, it is said, will be the president and general manager of the new concern. George W. Campbell, it is said, is also interested in the proposed company. Application for a charter will be made in the near future.

United Press Telegram. TITUSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 22.—With telephone and telegraph wires down, reports of damage from yesterday's storm are slow arriving in this section. All indications point to a heavy loss. At the farm of Miss Jackson, 12 miles from here, all the buildings were wrecked and Jackson and several neighbors injured when the barn fell. The house and barn took fire and were destroyed.

The home of Arthur Shore was blown from its foundation and burned and the same fate met the home of Gaylord Lee.

In the oil districts the derricks are down and there was great damage to farm buildings, orchards and timber. Reports from Meadville say there was no damage from the cyclone but that a 10 minute hail storm tore down the wires of the traction company and broke many windows.

DUMBAULD COMES BACK REITERATING STATEMENTS

Says He Talked With Judge Umbel About the Alibi Hotel License.

H. S. Dumbauld hurled another political document at the voters of Fayette county last night in answer to the answer of Judge R. B. Umbel to Mr. Dumbauld's letter dealing with the Alibi Hotel license at Fairchance, and the alleged interest of Bruce F. Starling and S. D. Frook had in the hotel. In his latest statement Mr. Dumbauld says:

Before denying so vehemently his knowledge of the ownership of the half interest in the Alibi Hotel, Judge Umbel should have refreshed his recollection by going over the "data" he might have had in the connection. If he had done so he would have no doubt recalled the fact—for it is a fact—that in the early part of 1905 to be exact just a few days before Sheriff Frook went to battle Creek for the benefit of his health, Judge Umbel asked me what I knew about this transaction. He stated to me that Sheriff Frook had told him he was buying a half interest in the hotel for himself and Mr. Starling. I told him that it was true. This conversation took place in his office in Uniontown. He must have known about it then.

I have made no statements over my signature or otherwise that are not the unvarnished truth, nor do I intend to make any that are not.

I join in Judge Umbel's request that voters investigate the truth of my statements I make and will at all times welcome any honest investigator.

I urgently request specific investigation of my statement that Judge Umbel holds his place at the head of the Democratic ticket by virtue of Republican votes, many of which were bought.

Rheumatism Prescription

Rheuma, that's the name of the so-called prescription that is putting old rheumatism out of business the country over.

Rheumatism comes by driving the urea acid from the blood directly on the kidneys and is better for the kidneys than most so-called kidney cures.

After the rheumatic poisons are driven from the body the stomach grows strong the blood becomes rich and red and a general feeling of perfect health prevails.

B. D. Smith of Elmira, N. Y., took Rheuma, and this is what he writes: "I was a sufferer from rheumatism for years. Since using Rheuma I have been entirely free from all aches and pains. Rheuma is certainly the stuff for rheumatism."

THE STARTING OF THE HUMBERT TIN PLATE MILL.

The announcement that the tin plate mill at South Connelleville will be put in operation just as soon as it can be repaired and made ready will be welcome news to Connelleville.

The starting up of this long-silent industry is the first substantial fruit of the "together-and-get-busy" spirit which has recently been awakened by the silk mill proposition and the rejuvenation of the Chamber of Commerce. It is an example of what united, earnest and aggressive work can do in the way of restoring prosperity to a halting community.

It should be the policy of Connelleville people to keep the Humbert mill going after it is started. It has been silent and smoldering for years chiefly because of the dictatorial and arrogant spirit of union labor which dominated its operation. While the South Connelleville plant has roared in idleness the other mills in the district have run with great regularity simply because the Open Shop policy prevailed in them.

The Humbert mill will be reopened under the same policy. No discrimination will be made against any workman because of the fact that he is a union man, neither will any discrimination be permitted to be practiced against any workman because he does not belong to the union. The rule is fair and eminently American in spirit. It will be supported by Connelleville sentiment because of this fact as well as the further fact that any other attitude on our part will undoubtedly shut down the mill perhaps as suddenly as it is opened up. This is not a threat, but a condition. The millowners in any period of overplus product will reduce operations at those plants which it is least desirable to run, and it is the company's policy to operate its open mills in preference to its union mills.

The Humbert mill is a valuable Connelleville industry when running. It employs several hundred workmen at better wages than the average industry. Its renewed operation will mean the addition of a considerable population and a marked stimulus to business.

Without ceasing its earnest efforts to locate the silk mill, the Chamber of Commerce should turn its attention to the starting of the Silgo mill and use its best endeavors to fortify itself with an industrial guarantee fund under the Williamsport plan for the attraction of good industries in general, bearing always in mind that the town which diversified industries is the town which best maintains a steady growth and prosperity.

ANCIENT AND MODERN DEMOCRATIC DUPLICITY.

Ex-Candidate Dumbauld reiterates that Ex-Dissidentators Frock and Sterling promised faithfully to support him for the Democratic judicial nomination, and then gave him the double-cross. Cardinal Wolsey tells us how futile it is to put one's faith in prince's favors, and modern politics teaches us that political promises are even more unreliable. Perhaps our valiant Democratic friend from Saltlick township relied too much on this kind of political support, and was led to think himself stronger than he really was.

We recall the fact that in the good old Democratic days when a Democratic nomination was equivalent to an election, and when Republicans were not allowed a stool at the kitchen door when the Democratic politicians were feeding themselves fat in the Court House, that another Saltlick Democrat ran for the Democratic nomination for Sheriff. Being a methodical man, he carried a book in which he entered the names of all who pledged him their support. Before the campaign was half over, he retired to his mountain home fully convinced that he had a majority of the Democratic vote.

Instead of getting several thousand he got several hundred. He consoled himself by remarking that there were several thousand Democratic liars in Fayette county.

Judging from the manner in which some of the big Democrats are talking about each other right now, Duplicity remains a Democratic Heritage.

ETERNAL VIGILANCE NECESSARY IN POLITICS.

"A detective from the Yough" has been telling the Uniontown Standard how it is possible for professional Dissidentators to insure the proper delivery of their political goods after having bargained for them. It is not stated whether the practice is patented in Connelleville or whether it is prevalent here, but it is described as follows:

The first voter goes to the polling place, secures his ballot, walks into the voting booth, but instead of marking the ballot and putting it in the ballot box he sticks it into his pocket and carries it away with him to the rendezvous of the vote-buyer. Here the ballot is marked by the briber for one who is willing to sell his vote who goes to the polling place, gets a ballot, goes into the booth, folds the clean ballot and puts it in his pocket, comes out and votes the ballot his purchaser has marked and carries the unmarked ballot to the rendezvous ready for the next voter who is for sale, and so on to the end of the list. The purchase price is not paid for the vote until the one who sells himself returns to the briber with the unmarked ballot.

The Standard does not think this scheme could be worked, especially this year when the ballot will be about the size of a newspaper, nor in any polling place where the election officers are vigilant. That's just the point. The election officers are charged with the duty of seeing that every man who gets a ballot deposits a ballot in the ballot box. If they are vigilant and faithful in the performance of this duty the trick above explained cannot be worked.

"Eternal vigilance is the price of safety," especially in politics.

THE DUSTY DEMAND OF THE BIG MINE CHIEF.

Chief Mine Inspector Roderick has issued orders to the mine inspectors commanding them to "notify the mine foreman, superintendent or manager" of the fact, when the mines are dusty, "with a request that the matter be remedied at once."

But the Big Chief offers no particular plan to remedy the danger complained of, and he merely "requests" the operators to eliminate the condition. The request will doubtless be honored by the operators in so far as they are able to recognize imminent danger, but if they do not agree with the inspector his "request" may be more honored in the breach than in the observance.

"Horatio" Dumbauld reiterates his charge against Judge Umble in the Fairbance hotel deal and insists that the judge knew of the ownership of the hotel because he himself imparted the information to the judge. The Democratic primary campaign is apparently not yet entirely fought out. Well, from a Republican point of view, there is no objection. Let 'em fight!

The judicial campaign has reached the red hot stage, and it is becoming otherwise lurid.

Greene county coal is looking up in price since it is being actively looked up by the buying interests. There is little of it left in the hands of the original owners and the present holders have bolder ideas of its value.

Keep Together and Keep Busy!

Justice was swift in the Atkins case, but her foot slipped when it came in contact with a contradictory witness.

There's many a slip on the humble business route to the West Virginia convict camp and to the Penitentiary, who slipped off his hands with the aid of a good deal of grease and slipped away from the Sheriff, is probably not complaining about his slip.

Ducks, are plentiful on Indian creek, but a Golden Goose is about to nest again at South Connelleville.

A Militant Suffragette has invaded America, and Women Suffragists will probably experience another boom. It's English, don't know.

The Jamikons are reaching out into West Virginia and taking a chance at coal land taxes. The Greensburg field is too limited for their operations and Westmoreland sentiment is rather aggressive for higher coal assessments.

The Hookwood Italian who was invited to a party, and taken out and tied to a tree and robbed of all his savings, will probably be shy about accepting any more party invitations.

The borough battle is the place to cure jugs, not to make them.

The H. C. Frick Coke Company have some mineral coke evens that might be put in commission.

Kaiser William fears race suicide in Germany and as an inducement to the raising of tens millions of ingers families he has offered to stand as godfather for every eighth child. In the course of a few years we may expect the Federal "rollers" to call every strange boy "Bill."

The visit of the Cyclone to Cambridge Springs was very brief, but it was unanimously voted an Undesirable Guest.

With Fry in Louisville is going to sing, not make speeches in "Greece." She is to be congratulated on her taste.

SCOTSDALE PEOPLE'S LECTURE COURSE.

HUNTER BOY HAS MANY AUNTS

Connellsville Child Who is Visiting. Telephone Agitation for West of Town—An Epidemic of Colds Oppresses the Mill Town Folks.

SCOTSDALE, Oct. 22.—The Young Men's Christian Association has begun their campaign of selling season tickets for the lecture course, which will be given at Geyer's opera house. They are trying to reduce the expense and labor incident to this and today wanted out to their former patrons the number of tickets they have purchased in the past, with the announcement that a representative will call soon after November 1 when the tickets may be paid for or returned to the association. J. M. Zimmerman is the chairman of the Lecture Course Committee. The season opens on November 15 with the Dundas Company Male Quartette and Bill Rogers; on December 12 it will be the College Singing Girls. Dr. Edward Amherst, M.D., the noted educator, will lecture on January 23 and former Governor E. W. Hoch on Augusts on February 11, while the course will close with the Redpath Grand Quartette on March 15.

Entertaining Relatives.
Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Dehaven of Broadway are entertaining a number of relatives this week, among them Mrs. Effie Wagner and daughters, Leola and Carrie, who are on their way from Salisbury, Somerset county, to Akron, Ohio, where Mr. Wagner is engaged in carpenter work. Mrs. Carrie Robinson of Chambersburg and Miss Stella Hudson of Pittsburgh and Mrs. James Hunter of Connellsville, accompanying the latter is her little son, Irvin, aged four years. He is a most beautiful boy, and having the time of his life. Miss Hudson is his aunt. Mrs. Dehaven is his great aunt and Mrs. Robinson is his great-great aunt. Giving an Oyster Supper.
There will be an oyster supper given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew B. Davis at Owensdale tomorrow evening for the benefit of the Tyrona Presbyterian Church.

Baseball Show.
Manager E. J. Buttermore of the Geyer opera house has arranged to show the first Pittsburgh-Detroit ball game at Forbes Field in moving pictures at his place today, and the news makes the fans that did not go down to the Smoky City to see the real playing sit up intently.

For a Telephone Line.
Letters are being sent out all over the country west of town to interest the residents in the installation of telephones. The Bell company has a line run out as far as A. O. Aldridge's on Pittsburgh street extension, with the wires strung as far as David Anderson's while there is a large community beyond that anxious to secure telephone communication with town.

Football Practice.
The Scottdale High School football team is putting in some busy hours with practice this week, getting ready to meet the Connellsville High school team at Elsworth park tomorrow afternoon at 2:15. Principal C. H. Smith of the High School is manager and Shirley and Rowe, teachers in the High School, are the coaches.

Hallowe'en Meeting Tonight.
The chairman of the committee to arrange for the Hallowe'en celebration here has called a meeting for the Borough building this evening at 8 o'clock to make plans for the big party that will be out the night of the celebration, which will probably be Friday night. There is a strong sentiment in favor of the show and many people are making their arrangements now for the celebration of the night, which has been such a feature of autumn for several years in Scottdale.

Humbert to Start.
District Superintendent Robert Skemp of the American Sheet & Tin Plate Company, was a much pleased Scottdale man yesterday, his efforts to secure a starting up of the Humbert tin plate mill in South Connellsville having been rewarded with success. Mr. Skemp has had this in mind for sometime past and after getting the two plants at Scottdale in operation threw his every energy toward getting Humbert under way also. It may be that some of the Scottdale men will be taken to Humbert while operations are being started. Mr. Skemp spent yesterday in Connellsville looking over the mill and left last night for the West Virginia plants of the company.

An Epidemic of Colds.
Doctors and druggists say that not this year has there been apparently such a large number of people suffering from violent colds as were noticed for sometime yesterday and today. There seems to have arisen a veritable epidemic of colds, due to the changeable weather of the last few days.

Rain Helps Hunters.
The recent rains have improved hunting conditions in the mountains. Read our advertisements carefully.

DAWSON WEDDING.

B. F. Husband and Miss Lucy Thelma, Maids Married Thursday.
DAWSON, Oct. 22.—(Special).—A happy wedding was solemnized Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Layton Forsythe, Dawson, when Miss Lucy Thelma, daughter of B. F. Husband, was united in marriage to the Rev. H. N. Carnahan, pastor of the Cochran Memorial Church officiating. It was a quiet affair. Only the immediate friends of the couple were present. A wedding dinner was served after which the couple left for the west on a short honeymoon. They will go to housekeeping in Dawson on their return.

The bride is well known in Dawson and has a host of friends. She has made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Forsythe for the past few years, having formerly lived in Smithton. ### CONTROL YOUR FAT.

One can now take off and keep off extra fat at will. If you have an overall abdomen or double chin you can clear it away completely without medicine, food, fluid, exercise, or anything else. The reason is this: "Take a teaspoonful after meals and at bed time of this mixture: 1/2 oz. Marshmallow Root, Fluid Extract Cascara, Anise and 3/4 Peppermint Water—any drug store has them—and go on eating as you please you; don't worry about results."

The double chin and ponderous stomach will soon show signs of melting away. They will not wax in or wrinkle, however, just go down nice and smooth and even. The effect is due to the harmonious natural action of the mixture.

This is explained as follows: It is getting late. Instead of making enemy and mauling from your food, it is manufacturing fat. The above mixture corrects this defect and hence it makes you stronger and healthier at the same time. It is taking off of you 12 to 16 ounces of useless fat a day. The reason it affects double chin, hips, etc., first is because the fat on them is softer and can not resist the remedy as long as that on the limbs. But eventually all the fat has to go if you keep up the treatment.

"I can hardly make out what he says, captain. The sending is awful. It's a good operator, too. I believe, only he's lost his nerve completely. But as he's a man, I can make out—'It's a little better now. He says Ives, bound for New York from Porto Rico, struck reef two hours ago. Don't know where.'"

"Yes, yes, I understand," broke in the captain impatiently. "But can't he give us any idea of his course? Can't he say if he's on the reef? Within 200 miles of our present position. Could you send 200 miles tonight?"

"Harling shook his head. 'I don't think we could, sir. And 200 miles for a yacht would be impossible. Wait a minute.'"

"He sprang to the key again and with firm, emphatic strokes drove an imperative message. 'What's that?' asked the captain. 'I asked for his radius of communication—how far he could send,' explained Harling. He waited a moment, and then the receiver began again its nervous, frightened clicking.

"The face of the listening operator brightened. 'Sixty miles,' he exclaimed, translating the clicks. 'Why, we must be within forty miles to get him at all tonight. But we are going toward him. We might now be within thirty miles.'"

"The captain shook his head. 'Yes, but where?' he said. 'It may be in any position. Anywhere within a forty mile reach, ahead or on either beam, and tonight we can scarcely see a quarter mile with the searchlight.'"

"Again the receiver began a wild tattoo. The light went out of Harling's face as he listened. Then he turned almost piteously to the captain. 'He says they're breaking up, sir. For God's sake!'"

"The clicking stopped suddenly. The two men in the wireless room looked at each other, and slowly each saw the horror grow in the eyes of the other. They waited with blanched faces. The receiver started still.

"'They're gone,' said the captain softly at last, and outside the wireless room the wind roared triumphantly, while the big waves pitched the ship about in the teeth of the gale.

"Harling dropped back into a chair. 'Gone!' he muttered stupidly. 'Gone!' And then, to his plain imagination, there came the picture of the yacht breaking up and the thirty going down to death in the sea. Perhaps they might be rescued, they might be rescued on them. Perhaps there was still time. And then the thought, 'Suppose there are women, too, on board,' came to the young operator.

"Harling sprang to his feet. 'No, no!' he yelled loud above the storm. 'They can't be gone! We will save them!'"

"He sprang to the key and desperately, rebelliously, yelled out into the night a message of cheer and hope. 'We're coming. We'll save you. Where are you? Hang on!'"

"The captain laid his hand gently on the young fellow's shoulder. 'It's no use, I fear, boy,' he said softly. 'They are gone. That's the way it is now. You've done all you could, boy. Make a full report and transcription for me. If you should get another call send for me at once.'"

"Turning, the old seaman opened the door of the wireless room to light his way along the deck to the lookout's position. Inside the room young Harling dropped into a chair before his instrument and, bending over, buried his head in his hand.

"Suddenly he sat up straight, tense in every nerve and muscle. What was that? Was it his imagination playing tricks again? No, he could not be mistaken. There it was again.

"He looked, listened, then sprang to his feet, with a shriek of joy, for the little recorder in front of him began again slowly, as though tired, to click. 'A-A-A-A-A.'"

"He read it off aloud, with regret. 'Just some bottles,' he said bitterly to himself. 'That's the only call.'"

"Next his face lighted, and he laughed aloud hysterically, for it was the navy call, but it came from the Ives. Impatiently the operator seized the telephone.

"'Captain, captain,' he shrieked. 'I've got the Ives again, sir! Not Pluckey this time. There's a man at the key. We can get something from this one. He can't send much, but he's all there with his nerve.'"

"He dropped the telephone again as the receiver began to click: 'Ives Ives Ives, arguing on reef. Position unknown, but within thirty miles of you getting this message. To indicate relative position storm center now passing directly northwest of us. Heaviest lightning northeast by east. Can you make out our position?'"

"The captain had re-entered the wireless room by the time the message was delivered.

"'Tell him,' exclaimed the officer. 'We can make out his position now. We are steering southwest by west to find him. Ask him how long he can last.'"

"The answer to the message came back slowly, with every dot and dash above distinct: 'Half an hour.'"

"Ives Ives, commended the captain, 'we are twenty miles away probably and can't make better than 12 knots at hour in this storm.'"

"A terrific flash of lightning for one blinding instant lit up the mountainous waste of waves outside.

"'Ask him where that lightning was,' shouted the officer. 'Just by north,' the receiver clicked back.

"In another minute the course of the ship had been changed one point to the southward, and all this while the receiver slowly but steadily clicked out building news.

"'We have two boats. Both boats left yacht ten minutes ago during break in communication with you. They seem to understand direction you coming. First boat making for you. Look for its lights.'"

"An expression of admiration came on the face of the old seaman. 'Then that fellow must have stayed behind to guide us and save the people in the boat,' he exclaimed. 'Ask him how many are with him.'"

"Harling translated the quick answer: 'One. He is below. Stayed with me to run dynamo. We can give directions as long as held together. That last lightning flash due north.'"

"'Well, he's got his nerve, all right,' exclaimed the officer, with admiration. 'We've got to save that fellow.'"

"The receiver was still pounding away. 'Both boats got away safely, Pluckey, Mrs. Durant, in first also Mrs. Durant, I believe. Make every effort to save them.'"

"The skilled operator quickly cut off part of the current, but the message continued uninterrupted. 'Harling laughed joyfully.

"'We are much closer than we thought,' he exclaimed, with excitement. 'I used less current, and he got us all right. If he got that we can't be two miles off.'"

"He seized the key and checked off the cheering news to the man on the stranded Ives who used the navy call.

"Very firmly, but slowly, the answer came: 'We shall not outlive this storm gathering thicker. Both boats should live. Ives we are lost see that family of man who stayed with me is rewarded with my property.'"

"'I wonder who that fellow is,' exclaimed the Mongolian chief officer. 'Did he tell you?'"

"Harling shook his head. 'No, but he's a naval man. He used the navy call. We're on him. Listen.'"

"He translated quickly: 'You are now between 15 and 20 miles. See your light. Boat's mouth of you. Do not expect further directions. Going to pieces. Steer south.'"

"The first officer burst into the wireless room. 'Here, sir,' he exclaimed. 'I'll take your place. There is a searchlight on the starboard bow.'"

"The captain struggled out to the deck as Harling pounded this cheering message of help and appeal to stick: 'Give your light. Coming. For God's sake don't break up!'"

"The answer was sharp and stern: 'Don't try touch us. Boats have twenty-six. Only two here.'"

"Even as the message came a faint cheer rang out on the deck of the Mongolian. The first boat had been sighted. Carefully because of the tremendous waves the lightboat bore down on the big ship. Slowly she edged around, then a rope was thrown and caught. A rope ladder and other ropes went over the side, and then almost before Harling could send another mes-

"Then, for God's sake, come to me! Come quick!"

"sage the half-drowned members of the Ives crew were being dragged to safety over the side of the ship."

"Mrs. Durant, the first one taken aboard, and Pluckey, the second, were helped into the wireless room. The woman was moaning hysterically.

"'Frances is lost, lost!' she sobbed. Next the clicking of the wireless instrument brought Pluckey partly to himself.

"'What's that?' he asked. 'Some one on the Ives. Who is he?' demanded Harling. Pluckey did not answer and Mrs. Durant broke in:

"'It's Lieutenant Sommers. He stayed behind to guide you. What's he saying?'"

"'He wants to know if all are safe in the first boat.'"

"'Yes, but Frances,' cried the mother—'Frances, where is she?'"

"The clicking of the receiver cut off her speech. 'He says: 'Don't give up second boat. Don't believe it lost.'"

"The captain of the Mongolian let out an oath. 'We can't stop for the second boat,' he exclaimed. 'I'm going for that fellow. Tell him we're coming for him.'"

"Harling kept the message, but a moment later the word came from the lookout:

PROPERTY LOSS IS HEAVY

Sixty-Mile Wind Tours Path Through Resort; Leaving Ruin in Wake. Several Persons Injured and Many Narrowly Escape Death.

Cambridge Springs, Pa., Oct. 22.—The most pretentious section of this famous resort was desolated last evening by a cyclone which totally destroyed three buildings, one a large mansion house; partially wrecked a summer cottage, undid a big hotel, and did similar damage to dozens of other buildings.

Two persons were so injured that they had to be taken to a hospital, while scores received bruises through being struck by flying debris or flung through the streets by the wind. Many had narrow escapes from injury or death. The Erie interurban trolley line was tied up by the wreck of a bridge near town.

All this damage, beside the leveling of large shade trees and the tearing down of telephone and telegraph lines, was done in the space of a minute by the tornado, which traveled a mile in that time.

DOZEN CASES YET REMAIN

Warren H. Kale and John C. Hanni, former county commissioners, and North Newton, former good roads commissioner, pleaded guilty.

Youngstown, O., Oct. 22.—Following a conference with their attorneys Warren H. Kale and John C. Hanni, former county commissioners, appeared in the court of common pleas and pleaded guilty to the indictments against them charging bribery.

Kale is already under a bond of $2,000, which will stand until his sentence is pronounced by Judge George F. Robinson, and Hanni was placed under $2,000 bond to await his sentence.

Later North Newton, former good roads commissioner, appeared before the court and pleaded guilty to three bribery indictments against him. Newton is charged with having solicited a bribe of $500 from W. W. Kelly, a Pittsburgh contractor, also under indictment. He is also charged with having solicited a bribe of $250 from O. C. Starr.

In the case against Kale Detective R. M. Ray testified he had met Kale in a hotel and paid $150 for having approved the limestone for which Ray was the agent. A witness to the payment of the money was John Davis of the county auditor's office.

The indictments against the two men were similar. In each case each of them were charged with having solicited from Edward E. Hunt, a detective, a promise to pay them 2 1/2 per cent of the contract price on all electric and gas fixtures in the new courthouse. In another indictment both were charged with having solicited a bribe of $100 each from Detective Ray for their approval of limestone. The third indictment charged them with having solicited a bribe of $300 from James S. Pierce for the purchase of a site for the county jail. The money in these two last indictments was alleged to have been paid over. It was alleged the only defense the men could have put up against the testimony offered would have been their own statements denying the charges.

Twelve other men, including county officials and contractors, are under indictment.

POISONED CANDY

As Peace Offering Contained Quantities of Strychnine.

St. Louis, Oct. 22.—Mrs. Maude Ridley, a brunette, aged thirty-two, residing at the fashionable Vrooman apartments here, was taken in custody by Chief of Police Gaffney on a charge of having given poisoned candy to Mrs. Nannette Lillard, wife of R. W. Lillard, aged thirty-five, a reporter for a newspaper here.

Captain Gaffney reports that last Sunday Mrs. Lillard handed him a box of chocolates which she said Mrs. Ridley had given her. Gaffney turned the candy over to the city chemist, who announced that the candy was so charged with strychnine that one piece of it fed to a rabbit killed the rabbit almost instantly.

Mrs. Lillard, according to the report, charges Mrs. Ridley with having come to her home and giving her the candy as a peace offering after she had asked the police to protect her and her family from Mrs. Ridley's infatuation for Mr. Lillard.

SENATOR JOHNSON DEAD.

A Democrat May Be Named in His Place.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 22.—United States Senator M. N. Johnson died here last night of Bright's disease. Governor Burke, Democrat, will name a man of his party to fill the vacancy.

Senator Johnson was fifty-nine years old. He was born on a farm in Racine county, Wis. and was a son of Rev. Nelson Johnson, a native of Norway. Senator Johnson was a graduate of the Wisconsin university and came to this state in 1882, devoting his attention to farming. He was a member of the constitutional convention. In 1899 he was a candidate for United States senator and tied the Republican party vote in caucus, but was defeated in the joint session. In 1900 he was sent to congress and was three times nominated by re-election. He was eight years in the lower house.

BAN ON UNWRITTEN LAW

No Room For It in Ohio, Says Judge Instructing Jury.

Columbus, O., Oct. 22.—"Stop, stop," shouted Judge Thomas M. Bigger of the Franklin county common pleas court as he called Judge M. B. Barnhart, counsel for defense in a murder case to order.

"While I preside in this court I will show no attorney to plead the unwritten law. There is no room for the unwritten law in Ohio," he instructed the jury to disregard what the attorney had said and later instructed them to frame their verdict by the statute on murder, which he read.

SHARP "CALLING DOWN"

For Spectators Who Get in Wright's Way and Nearly Caused a Tragedy. College Park, Md., Oct. 22.—Will Wright saved two spectators from probable death in his fight at College Park when they tried to cross in front of the Wright machine just as it was about to land. Mr. Wright, with Lieutenant Lahn as a passenger, had been up for more than half an hour before he started to descend. He turned from his course parallel with the Baltimore and Ohio railroad tracks to the south when the two spectators started over the field. He was flying within a few feet of the ground at the time and when he started to land he gestulated to them.

The two spectators either did not see him or did not pay any attention and Mr. Wright grabbed the control levers and swerved the machine to the left to avoid them. After he had landed he sprang from the machine and sprouted about a hundred yards or more to administer a "calling down." Evidently he administered it all right, for his hand was flying in all directions as he came up with the two men who had come near causing a tragedy.

O'LEARY'S ORATION DELAYED SENTENCE

Odor of Leather in Shoemaker's Shop Gave Him Thirst—Burgess Gave Him a Fine.

Jack O'Leary enlivened an otherwise ordinary session of police court last evening with an oration that lasted several minutes after he had been sentenced 48 hours for the jag he accumulated before breakfast yesterday morning. Jack gave vent to his spleen against the newspaper men who have been rude enough to give Jack some gratuitous publicity.

Yesterday morning he broke his belt and went to a shoemaker to have it repaired. The odor of the leather gave him a thirst and the officers poked him out of a gutter. He seemed to think Burgess Evans unjust in passing sentence, but that did not keep the Burgess from assessing the usual fine.

It was a case of "down goes, Mc Ginty," murmured Charles, who appeared before the Burgess with about three-fourths of his jag remaining. Charles was visibly nervous, likewise unkempt and wild looking. He asked to be let off but Burgess Evans decided it would take about 48 hours for him to get sober once more.

GREEN ROOM CHAT.

Probably none enjoyed "The Climax" more than Mrs. Charles L. Stout, Lucina Watson, the original star in the attraction, alternated with Mrs. Stout in leading parts while on the road some years back. Mrs. Stout all the light operas on several tours and remained great friends after Mrs. Stout left the stage.

Again, some years ago while "Pete" Stout had his company down through the South, Edward Locke, author of "The Climax," applied for a job. He was on his "uppers," Mrs. Stout believes Locke wrote the play especially for Mrs. Watson or at least had her in mind when designing the long feminine role of the attraction.

"The Holy City."
No play of recent years has attracted the attention that has been accorded Clarence Bennett's production of "The Holy City" which comes to the Soloson theatre, Wednesday, Oct. 27. It is not only one of the most unusual as to theme, but as to scenic production it is said to be one of the most magnificent of any that any firm of American managers has ever attempted. As the title would imply it is the story of old Jerusalem at the time the Savior was on earth and though the author has of course refrained from using or introducing the character of Our Lord he has made many of his disciples and followers prominent characters, and to witness this remarkable drama is to live for the time being in the days when Christianity first shed its light upon the world. The author, himself appears here with this production.

"The Passing Review," a musical comedy comes to the Soloson theatre Thursday, Oct. 28, bigger, brighter than last year and brand new from the back drop to the footlights. Manager Jack Singer, long identified with Lyde & Behman successes, is offering a production containing 10 people, and a number of good laughs and pretty women. The day has gone when lots of fat girls in cotton gowns standing about a stage constituted a musical play and in its place is the smartly costumed production, with few lights and those of all.

Mr. Singer's show this year has been put together regardless of expense. The opening act showing an interior set on the stage of Hammerstein's Opera House, is executed in swift blue and the effect is bewitchingly beautiful. The title of the evening "Caught with the Goods" is an exact reproduction of the interior of a theatre, stage, boxes, etc., which created such a sensation in

"The Billionaire."
Manager Singer has gotten together 10 very handsome "show girls" all of one size and height. He declares there isn't a pound difference in their weight. The dancers in the pony ballet are all less than five feet tall. All the modern gowns are imported, the character costumes only being made in this country.

"Wildfire."
The management of the Soloson announces as the attraction Saturday, Oct. 30th the delightful comedy

"Wildfire" by George Broadhurst and George Robert. "Wildfire" is a play dealing with the sporting element of New York society and the theme is a most interesting one. The scenic appointments are said to be separate and it is promised that the acting company will be unusually capable. The chief performer will be Will Archie, who created the part of Bud, the stable boy, and the part of Mrs. Barrington will be played by Julia West. A special matinee performance will be given starting at 2:45 P. M.
